‘If you can’t love, there’s no need to live’

Protesters In Black Call SC Order Shameful And Regressive. Demand Right To Life Of Dignity

Marla Akram &
Sleepy Curly Chawaliyah

New Delhi: After Supreme Court set aside the 2009 (Delhi High Court verdict) decriminalizing homosexuality, human rights advocates belonging to the LGBT community and supporters gathered at Jantar Mantar on Wednesday evening to protest. Most of them were in black to show their experiment and were holding placards with messages clearly indicating the theme. They were demanding their right to live a life of dignity and peace, and not to go to the apex court, where will we go? Supreme Court has said that they will not be receiving any petition from them if they have to, and therefore were demanding to present the Constitution to them.

The non-violent protest took place in a calm and peaceful manner, with participants holding black flags and posters with messages like “We demand our right to live”. The crowd was composed of members of the LGBT community, human rights activists, and supporters. The protest was silent, with no use of any loudspeakers or amplifiers. The participants were seated on the ground, some holding signs and others listening to a speaker.

Times News Network

New Delhi: The Supreme Court order criminalizing gay sex will not result in a “massive exodus” by the police as feared, at least that’s what police officials told TNN on Thursday. Asked how the judiciary would impact police action against this crime, they said those actions would be “prosecutorial, advice, etc.”

Delhi Police registered 22 criminal cases under section 377 of the Indian Penal Code in 2012. This year, the police had registered 110 cases under this section till November 30, an officer said. The booked persons under this section only after receiving a series of compliants regarding any “assault” by a man or a woman. If a person approaches us complaining of sexual molestation, we are bound to take action, the officer said.

Members of the LGBT community however fear harassment by both the cops and the morose police. “Five years ago, the police had come out against Mahila Sathi flat and stopped our party. Two of my friends were talking in low voices when the police came.”

The police had also registered 10 cases in the past year, the officer said. The police are currently investigating another case in which a man was allegedly being harassed by police officials.

The police said that they will continue to investigate the case and ensure that justice is served. They also assured the community that their rights will be protected and that they will not be subjected to any form of harassment or violence.

Community fears harassment by cops, moral police have registered 110 cases under this section till November 30, an officer said. The booked persons under this section only after receiving a series of compliants regarding any “assault” by a man or a woman. If a person approaches us complaining of sexual molestation, we are bound to take action, the officer said.

Members of the LGBT community however fear harassment by both the cops and the morose police. “Five years ago, the police had come out against Mahila Sathi flat and stopped our party. Two of my friends were talking in low voices when the police came.”

The police had also registered 10 cases in the past year, the officer said. The police are currently investigating another case in which a man was allegedly being harassed by police officials.

The police said that they will continue to investigate the case and ensure that justice is served. They also assured the community that their rights will be protected and that they will not be subjected to any form of harassment or violence.

The police said that they will continue to investigate the case and ensure that justice is served. They also assured the community that their rights will be protected and that they will not be subjected to any form of harassment or violence.

The police said that they will continue to investigate the case and ensure that justice is served. They also assured the community that their rights will be protected and that they will not be subjected to any form of harassment or violence.